About the Barefoot and Gardner Awards

The Gardner Institute publicly recognizes post-secondary institutions that have taken active steps to successfully mitigate socially unjust and inequitable performance gaps for students from historically resilient groups. The award was created and named by friends and colleagues of Drs. Betsy O. Barefoot and John N. Gardner, the Gardner Institute's co-founders, to recognize and honor their deep commitment to and advocacy for more just and equitable postsecondary learning experiences.

Specifically, one two-year and one four-year institution will be selected as the recipients of the Barefoot & Gardner Awards. The Barefoot & Gardner Awards will recognize postsecondary institutions in the United States that have demonstrated, with strong evidence, their commitment to working toward the attainment of more socially just and equitable outcomes, at scale, in undergraduate education.

Applications for the award will be accepted until 11:59 p.m. Eastern on February 29, 2024. Please plan and submit accordingly.

Note: Applications must be submitted via the online form: Barefoot and Gardner Award Form
